ARTISTIC PERSPECTIVE

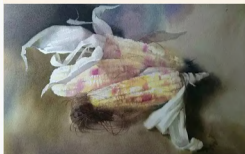

The artist, Adam and Eve in contrast to the situation described in the holy books, today's human typologies and art took the figures in history and re-interpreted. By developing the myth of sin in her paintings at the level of her own understanding of art, she brings different perspectives to her with her creative personality. In her figures, which she examined the subject with her original approach, using the human figures of her age with the observation of the present day, it is not only to address the sin of human beings.

Hernan Javier Muñoz

Hiper realistic Artist
Argentina

His name is Hernán Javier Muñoz. He was born in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Since he was a child he has stood out for his drawing skills and at 12 his parents took him to Art school in which the young artist didn't feel interested. He found it very difficult to concentrate and due to his lack of commitment, he didn't strike his teachers' attention.

His attending Art school didn't define his style or way. When he finished high school, the socio-economic situation of the country forced him to have a job which was not related to art.

When he was 20, thanks to the "Museo de Bellas Artes", he found passion in painting inspired by the works of William-Adolphe Bouguereau ("Premier Deuil"). He felt a world of search was opening up in front of him.

Without being able to afford the materials he needed to paint, he only got pigments and linseed oil to start his paintings. While he was still making a living out of a job unrelated to art, Hernán spent his time visiting the museum with a small box where he put small amounts of oil. He spent hours in front of the paintings and then he came home by bus in order to imitate the palette.

His technique is based on intuitively imitating the palette of great artists, thus defining himself as a "self-taught painter".

Today at 37, with a career as a plastic artist, he works in his paint shop in Villa Luro, a neighborhood in the Capital City of Buenos Aires. His technique and composition are characterized by the mixture between reality, dreams and people levitating next to their objects. His works are about the soul, the heart and the mind, which defines his paintings as Fantastic Realism.
